Takeaway : The Book's Mantra is to put all our focus on a single task to get extraordinary success in a field.

My experience :

I was feeling that something was missing in my life. I was searching for that one thing. After reading this book and doing above exercise I realised that I need a medium to express my feelings and experience and to help others who want improve their life by reading book summaries or books. Then I gotta idea to make Mind Map summaries with questions and to do list. Mindmap summaries present information in concise & connected way and are very similar to the way our mind store and analysis information. Questions and to do list provide an easy and necessary tool to implement that information in our daily life. Right questions provoke our mind in the right direction. Our mind starts to search all right answers and present a lot of possibilities. Our job is to pick the most favourable possibility, decompose the task in tiny steps and put those steps into our to do list.

Q&A

Read my previous blog and list all the things you want to do in your life or you should do are you should have done it?

Apply 80/20 principle and filter 20% of above that can cover up help remaining 80% things

Reapply 80/20 principle on the above things and repeat this step until very few things are left

Now prioritise them and choose most priority task

Now decompose selected task into several small steps

Ask yourself why do you want to do this task?

How can you help a lot of people by doing above task?

What distinct or new things can you do for this task?

What Questions are coming into your mind relating to this task?

Turn those questions into more positive format so that you can get right answer
